FOOD

RUSTIC AND REFINED

▼ Peruvian chef Victor Albisu has opened Del Campo, a 129-seat restaurant specializing in expertly grilled meats as well as traditional Latin American street foods. Designed by Georgetown-based CORE, the Chinatown spot features a warm palette of woods and neutral concrete walls as well as vintage crystal chandeliers. 777 I Street, NW; 202-289-7377. delcampodc.com

FRUITS OF THE SEA

A CLASSIC REBORN

▲ Edgar Bar & Kitchen brings a modern update to DC's iconic Mayflower Hotel. Designed by New York-based AvroKo, the space salutes the hotel's past with dark wood and leather upholstery. The brasserie menu serves up mini-Maryland crab cakes with smoked paprika sauce. 1127 Connecticut Avenue, NW; 202-347-2233. edgarbarandkitchen.com
